SINGER songwriter Nikki Felle has been given the big thumbs up by judges at a national music competition.

The German-born artist who lives in Shortlands, Bromley, has been making music since she was a teenager.

Nikki has now made it through to the London regional final of the Open Mic UK contest on November 1.

The prize for the winning act will be a recording and management contract, with the potential of large investment for a single release.

The winners will also be invited on the Open Mic UK Tour, which boasts 100 gigs across the country.

Nikki is currently working on her debut album Bright Outlook, which will be completed before end of the year.

Major influences on her music include everything from pop and jazz to classical and salsa.
